New features for the new 850

1 Adjustable UCLan chest harness

The chest strap tail at the quick-release buckle can be set at 3 cm independently of tightening the harness to fit at the side of the buoyancy aid. Following chest harness best practice.

Improved fit

Newly contoured and pre-shaped buoyancy foam, tapers upwards so the vest fits even better for both men and women. The best fit is vital for security, mobility and active swimming.

Enhanced visibility

The chest strap is now in signal yellow, all other straps in red instead of black.

2 Aluminum shoulder buckles

Buckles made from 7075 aerospace-grade aluminum with higher breaking strength replace the plastic buckles previously used on the shoulder straps.

3 Unique identification number

Each PFD is marked with a unique ID to help manage your inventory.

Lash tabs

Lash tabs on the shoulders and additional webbing lash points on the chest provide stable mounting points for radios and other accessories.

New front pocket design

The new pocket design, with pocket dividers and clip in points as well as an easy access slip pocket for a knife, organises your gear close to hand.

UCLan clean tail release

Palm sponsored research<sup>1</sup> into PFD chest harness release found that one in four harnesses failed to open properly under low load. Harness belts were too long, creating a risk of entanglement when released. But by cutting the belt to the optimal length the PFD can no longer fit different users or accommodate more bulky garments underneath. Working with the team from University of Central Lancashire (UCLan), Palm developed a patented<sup>2</sup> load bearing system that allows the size to be adjusted independently of the release mechanism – keeping the belt's tail 3 cm in length, optimal for release.

Clean line principle

Any loop or knot has a risk of entangling the line or worse the swimmer in the water. Our throwlines are designed to minimize the risk of snagging. The Quickclip clean line attachment on our throw bags is a webbing connector sized for a karabiner that makes an obvious and easily clipped point of connection. The rope inside can be untied from the bag when necessary for using the rope with a clean tail at both ends.

OUR IMPACT

Palm was the first company to introduce Gaia non-PVC foam into our buoyancy aids and we continue to find low impact alternatives wherever possible. Removing PVC from our drybags; using limestone non-petroleum neoprene; and introducing recycled nylon fabrics. In our supply chain we ship 99.7% of our goods by sea, producing fifty-five times less CO<sub>2</sub> than air freight. Goods are packed in cartons using paper tape – saving 198 km of plastic tape and removing 1,500 kg of plastic bags each year. But possibly the greatest impact we have is making gear that lasts. From the specification of a new design to our quality control at every step along the way, everything must exceed the standard. Premium components like YKK zippers, CORDURA® nylons and Gaia foam, help make gear that works time after time – so Palm gear outlasts the others.

Sizing

GETTING THE RIGHT FIT

Chest—measure horizontally under the armpits around the fullest part of your chest and shoulder blades.

Bust—measure horizontally round the fullest part of your bust.

Waist—measure the waist circumference at the smallest part of your waist, often at the belly button. For most women this is about an inch above the belly button.

Hips—measure the fullest part of your hips.

Inside leg—measure from your ankle bone to your groin.

Weight—include all the gear you'll be wearing too.

PERSONAL FLOATATION SIZING

PFD BUOYANCY LABEL

A correct fit is more important than choosing the buoyancy category according to your weight. All Palm PFDs have buoyancy above the minimum floatation required for CE/ISO and UKCA certification. PFD weight ranges are printed inside Palm PFDs on the ISO label.

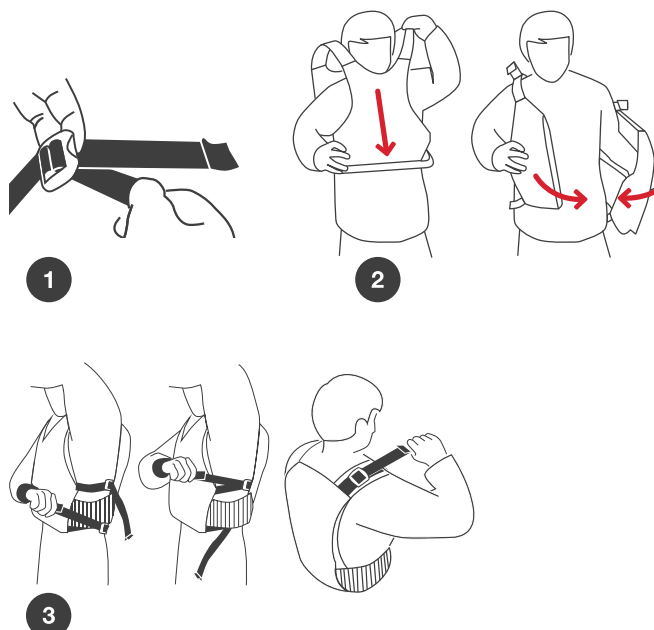

Bear in mind the clothing you choose to wear will also affect your ability to swim. Putting things in your pockets will also add overall weight. Consider what you will be carrying and wearing when choosing a PFD size.

- 3 Tighten or loosen the cradle at the back of your helmet to fit your head.
- 4 To change the helmet's front/back balance slide the straps through the three-way adjuster – take time to tension the chin straps equally.
- 5 Pull the chin strap through the quick release buckle to tighten under your chin – the fit should be snug, but not uncomfortably tight.
- 6 Try on your helmet – if the fit is still not satisfactory, repeat the steps. Add or remove fit pads (if supplied with your helmet).
